

Postgraduate Certificate and Professional Development Programmes in Clinical Education

The Postgraduate Certificate in Clinical Education

The Division of Medical Education at UCL Medical School, who have been providing high quality training for clinicians and allied healthcare professionals for over ten years, have launched an innovative new programme for those wishing to develop their potential as medical educators. The Postgraduate Certificate in Clinical Education (PGCCE) is a modular programme designed to ensure maximum flexibility whereby learners can begin to match their own unique requirements to this award bearing degree. The certificate is suitable for all those with an interest in medical education regardless of their status as clinician or non-clinician, or their seniority.

Core and choice: a programme of three core modules is complemented by a fourth chosen module, each module has 15M level credits

Core

- Teaching and Learning in Medical Education
- Practical Aspects of Assessment
- Education for the Health Professionals

Choice

- Educational Supervision
- Creating Online Educational Resources
- Adult Learning Theory

Teaching methods

A mixture of taught elements, which include practical sessions and small group work are balanced with time for self-directed learning. Assessments will be written assignments and one examination.

Taster Modules

You can take some modules as 'stand alone' without committing to the full certificate programme. Each as a stand alone course gives you 15 M level credits too and you may be eligible to carry these over to the certificate.

Cost

The full certificate costs £3165* (UK/EU) but you can join up for individual modules (£791* UK/EU each). *TBC

Find out more

To register on the programme or learn more please contact Lee Standen, divisional taught course administrator at: l.standen@medsch.ucl.ac.uk
Academic Centre for Medical Education (ACME),
UCL Division of Medical Education,
UCL Medical School, Holborn Union Building, Whittington campus,
2-10 Highgate Hill, London N19 5LW

Visit the website at www.ucl.ac.uk/dome/tpdu/modules